Rosebud Health Unit Organized.

Rosebud Health Unit was the name chosen to the full-time health unit, the organization of which was completed at a meeting held at the School Division on Thursday afternoon.

Representative of the Municipalities of Beaver Dam, Rosebud, Mountain View, Westerdale, Waterloo, Local Improvement District No. 282, and the towns of Olds, Didsbury and Carstairs were present. Mr. Norman S. Clarke occupied the chair.

Dr. A. C. McGugan, of the Department of Health, was present and outlined the functions of the unit. He stated that a budget of $11,000.00 was required to operate the unit towards which the Provincial Government would make a grant of $5,500.00. The Government would also provide a suitable building for offices and laboratory.

A qualified doctor as medical health officer, two nurses and a stenographer-technician will be employed as a permanent staff for this unit, while the services of a sanitary inspector would be divided between two units.

It was decided that the name of unit should be Rosebud Health Unit and that the officers should be located at Didsbury which is practically in the centre of the district.

Dr. McGugan stated that he had inspected several locations in Didsbury and he had found that the brick house in the north part of town, known as the Hiebert residence, was almost ideal for the purpose and it was recommended that it be leased for a term of three years.

A resolution was passed authorizing the Department of health to engage the staff subject to the approval of the board at a future meeting.

It was stated that the health unit would be in operation by the middle of October.

Farmers May Donate Wheat to Red Cross

Farmers will be able to make their donations to the Red Cross in wheat during the drive for funds, which is being made during October and the wheat will NOT be charged against their delivery quota.

The Canadian Wheat Board has authorized wheat deliveries above the established quotas for voluntary contributions to several organizations, one of which is the Red Cross.

The following are the instructions received from the Secretary of the Canadian Wheat Board, which is contained in their Circular No. 51, dated the 19th of September, 1940.

(1) When space is available, the producer should deliver the wheat to an elevator, have the producer's certificate made out in his own name and the cash ticket made out in the name of the organization to which the contribution is being made. The contribution must be made by cash ticket payable to the organization, and NOT by endorsement of the storage ticket. This delivery need not be recorded in the permit book as a part of the established quota.

(2) The producer must NOT endorse a storage ticket to the organization concerned, as this involves transfer of ownership, and the Board cannot buy wheat from such organizations, since they are not "producers" within the terms of the Canadian Wheat Board Act.

At a time when many farmers may not be able to raise the cash on account of the quota deliveries of wheat, this regulation will give them an opportunity to make their contribution to the Red Cross drive and it is hoped that a large number will take advantage of the regulation.

Canadians First to Receive "George Cross"

The King has awarded the George Cross to Lieut. Robert Davies, formerly of St. Catharines, Ont., and Sapper George Cameron Wylie, both of the Royal Engineers, for bravery in removing a time bomb which threatened St. Paul's cathedral.

It was the first time the newly-created award has been granted.

The official announcement of the awards, published in the London Gazette, said of Lieut. Davies: "So conscious was this officer of imminent danger to the cathedral, that, regardless of personal risk, he spared neither himself nor his men in their efforts to locate the bomb."

"After unremitting efforts, during which all ranks knew that an explosion might occur at any moment, the bomb was successfully extricated. In order to shield his men from further damage, Lieut. Davies himself drove the vehicle in which the bomb was removed, and personally carried out its disposal."

The announcement continued: "It fell to the lot of Sapper Wylie to make the actual discovery and removal of the bomb. Sapper Wylie's untiring energy, courage and disregard for danger were an outstanding example to his comrades."

Canadian Legion Nominates Officers

Nominations for officers for the coming year were on the order of business at the regular meeting of the Canadian Legion held on Saturday last.

W. W. Gillrie was nominated for president; E. Cogswell and Bruce Parker, Vice Presidents. Executives: West, Geo. Youngs and F. Jackson; East, E. Cullen, F. Gooding, H. Welch; Town, C. E. Rieber, W. A. Austin, W. T. Pitt and J. Garner; Sec.-Treas. S. J. Gilson.

Potatoes & Vegetables are Asked For

The appeal made last week for potatoes and vegetables for Woods Children's Home and the Junior Red Cross was answered by a number of sacks being brought in both from town and country.

Lots more are needed, however, so if you have any to spare load a sack or two in your car or truck and bring them in to Studer's store. Mr. Studer has kindly offered to store the vegetables until a sufficient quantity can be obtained to make a shipment to Calgary.

Protest Rail Grading of Hogs

Claiming that all interested persons and groups, except packing houses, had protested against the new hog carcass grading regulations which became effective last Monday, Hon. D. B. Mullen has in turn protested to Ottawa. "If this action is not cancelled it will discourage hog raising and will intensify the bitter distrust which producers have in being compelled to place their hogs on the packer's doorstep," he informed Hon. J. G. Gardiner.

Help to England.

The Alberta Red Cross division on Thursday shipped 30 cases of comforts and hospital supplies to England according to a statement released today from the division office. The cases contained 6,776 articles valued at $1,107 and including bed sheets, sweaters, dressing-gowns, pillow cases, towels, pyjamas, scarves and socks, abdominal binders and bandages.

Inter-School Track Meet on Friday

The Rosebud inter-school track meet will be held tomorrow (Friday) at Olds, in which the schools of Innisfail, Bowden, Olds, Didsbury and Carstairs will take part.

The Didsbury school are present holders of the Rosebud Cup and from the training they have been doing during the past two weeks they are going to make a strong bid to retain it. Here's wishing them luck!

Discontinue Home and School Assn.

At a meeting of the Home and School Association held at the home of Mrs. J. Hislop recently, the advisability of continuing the activities was discussed.

These organizations, especially in small towns, add greatly to the extra work of the teachers. It was felt that with the festival, Red Cross and other activities the teachers have more than enough extra work.

It was also felt that in a town of this size where parents and teachers become intimately acquainted such an association is unnecessary and so for the present, at least, the meeting decided to discontinue further activities.

Police Probing Olds Woman's Death

City and R.C.M. Police on Tuesday were investigating the sudden death of Mrs. Annie M. Hanson, an employee of a general store in Olds, who was found dead in a Calgary hotel room on Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Hanson was reported to have left Olds on Saturday to visit in Calgary. She was said to have sent a letter to the store saying she would be unable to return to work Monday as her father, who lived in Winnipeg, had become ill and that she planned to go to Winnipeg for a short time.

Mrs. Hanson lived in Winnipeg before coming to the Olds district.

Partridge Season Opened Last Tuesday

The hunting season opened on Tuesday for Hungarian partridge from the Athabasca and Clearwater rivers to the International boundary. There is no open season on prairie chicken south of township 39, a line north of Sylvan Lake and south of Lacombe.

Hungarian partridges are said to be plentiful this year, the maximum bag for these birds is 10 a day and 125 for the season.

Hunters are warned to carry their gun registration slips, national registration cards and shooting licenses. All must be produced on the request of officers.

Opposes Observance of Remembrance Day

The Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, according to John Blue, the secretary manager, is opposed to the observance of Remembrance Day this year and is seeking the views of boards of trade across Canada in the hope of having the customary observance cancelled. All energies should be concentrated on winning the war, said Mr. Blue, who pointed out that Thanksgiving is close to the Armistice celebrations in any case.

Rain Holds Up Threshing Operations

Rain, which commenced to fall on Tuesday night and continued all day Wednesday, has held up threshing operations.

Only about one third of the threshing has been done and it will be some days before operations can start again.

The rain has been general over most of the province.

Red Cross News

Another Maple Leaf Club in London operated by the Canadian Red Cross has been battered by Nazi bombs, it was stated in a cable received at Red Cross Headquarters in Toronto. There were no casualties. The service provided by the club will be carried on in other quarters and there will be no let-up in the work.

This was the second time within a week that Canadian Red Cross property in London had been damaged by air raids. The first Maple Leaf Club established by the Canadian Red Cross for Canadian soldiers was ruined by bombs. At that time the staff, including Pat Tuckett, Toronto nurse, Jane MacLaren and Faith Watson, Toronto girls, moved to the second club and played heroic roles in aiding air raid casualties in the district. They were all in the club damaged September 24th but escaped without injury.

Canadian Red Cross workers are continuing their efforts day and night in England on behalf of people left injured and homeless by air raids. Mrs. Plumpton, chairman of war activities, stated, "Thousands of articles of clothing and hospital supplies, as well as tons of food, are being distributed daily. The Canadian Red Cross is cabling ten thousand dollars to its London office to purchase urgently needed boots and shoes for homeless children. This is in addition to the ten thousand pairs of rubber boots being shipped from Canada in response to an urgent appeal from London. Thousands of blankets stored in Canadian Red Cross warehouses in England are being distributed daily and in response to a cable received September 25th ten thousand more will go forward from Canada immediately."

Reduce The Ash Heap

Waste which can be prevented is inexcusable at all times. In time of war waste that can be avoided is more than inexcusable, it becomes nothing less than criminal negligence.

The importance of preventing loss and of reclaiming waste material which can be put to useful purposes is recognized by all the belligerents in this war, enemy countries as well as those of the Allies. Appeals are constantly being made and organizations are being set up to prevent loss of materials which can be converted into weapons of offence and defence or which can be used to replace other materials needed for similar purposes, and to prevent waste of all kinds.

Every article and every commodity which, in ordinary times, is regarded as valueless and tossed out into the rubbish heap, but can now be saved and made to do duty in some form or another, is playing a part in our main objective, that of winning the war. To the extent that resources, which can be made of value, are not husbanded, to that extent the winning of the war is being retarded. Every "stop the waste" campaign in Great Britain, Canada and other units of the Empire plays a role in the overthrow of Hitler and Mussolini and their Nazi and Fascist hordes.

It is because we are at war, that fire prevention week in Canada, scheduled for early October, assumes greater importance than ever. For uncontrolled fire every year in this country takes an enormous toll of resources in human life and property, resources which could be of great value in the conflict which is being waged to conserve our lives, our property and those more intangible but none the less realistic resources—our liberties.

Losses Are Substantial

Without even considering the loss of life and the suffering it entailed, uncontrolled fire in Canada last year resulted in loss of property to the value of over $24,000,000, and that is a loss which handicapped Canada's war effort to an even greater extent than that figure represents.

Property loss by fire predicated the employment of money for replacement which should have been available for ordinary commercial channels or for direct war effort. It means the use of materials and energy, which otherwise would have been available, directly or indirectly, for the prosecution of the war. Every dollar in coin or credit, every pound of material and every hour of energy, utilized in replacing loss which could have been prevented, represents that much drag on the country's war effort.

There is another aspect to the question which should not be overlooked, and that is the fact that where insurance is carried, the loss represents a loss to the community at large. One is apt to hear the comment after a disastrous conflagration: "Oh, well, that's all right. It was covered by insurance." Those who blithely dismiss the matter in this happy-go-lucky manner, forget that they themselves are sharing part of the burden of the loss, for every loss is reflected in fire insurance rates which all who seek that protection must pay. Fire insurance does not prevent loss. It greater will be the tax on the community for protection, for fire insurance rates are based on experience.

A Valuable Contribution

An analysis of the figures of fire losses throughout the Dominion in 1939 shows that the people of the prairies are not altogether guiltless in the matter of waste by fire. The three prairie provinces last year contributed $2,665,833 in property values to the fire demon. That may not appear to be high in proportion to the remainder of the Dominion, yet much of it could have been prevented, as a survey of the causes demonstrates.

In the three provinces and, in fact, throughout the Dominion, dwellings head the list in monetary loss and the careless smoker is responsible for the greatest toll. In Saskatchewan, typical of the sister prairie provinces, agencies responsible for property by fire last year in order of demerit were: 1. The careless smoker; 2. Defective stoves and furnaces; 3. Defective chimneys and flues; 4. Children playing with matches; 5. Careless handling of gasoline and petroleum products.

It does not require much reflection to determine that all fires attributable to these five major causes need not have occurred, that all of them could have been prevented with the exercise of reasonable care. If smokers would only see that cigarette butts and tobacco heels were extinguished, if people would periodically inspect stoves, furnaces, chimneys and flues and remedy defects, if matches were placed beyond the reach of children, if folks exercised common-sense precautions in handling gasoline and similar inflammable liquids, stores of tragic losses would be cut to the irreducible minimum.

It is important, therefore, that fire prevention week be observed, that its lessons be taken to heart, not only when they are fresh in the mind but throughout the year. If this is done, then not only will the cost of fire protection be substantially reduced and the tragedies of uncontrolled fire be almost eliminated but all will be a valuable contribution towards winning this war—the greatest and most costly of all wars.

A Profitable Industry

Farmers Who Raise Sheep Are Building On Good Foundation

Good sheep men do not need to be told that sheep are good, states the Family Herald and Weekly Star. They have in fact loyally maintained that position, even when they would have found it hard to prove the point to a chartered accountant. But now sheep are good financially as well as—morally! Authorities are always loath to commit themselves by advising farmers what crops to raise, but even the authorities have teetered out on the limb as far as sheep are concerned.

That is because they have the hardest of hard facts to back them. Canada is producing only 18,000,000 pounds of wool (on the greasy basis) and requires for domestic and military use, four or five times as much. Net imports of lamb run to 1,000,000 pounds in spite of our production of from 60 to 70 millions.

Prices for both wool and lamb are profitable, and as our shortage of domestic production is not merely a wartime phenomenon, but a normal one, the farmer who raises sheep is building—if not upon a rock—at least on about as firm a foundation as there is these days.

There are about 8,000 official markers along the international boundary line between the U.S. and Canada.

History Again Repeats Itself

United States Acquired British Warships During Spanish-American War

Bettina F. Whyte in the New York Times, says with Great Britain needing our moral and material aid in her courageous single-handed fight to preserve freedom for the world, it might be well to mention that during the Spanish-American War, when the United States was sorely in need of warships, Great Britain sold two newly completed cruisers to us. These were the New Orleans and the Albany. They were built at Barrow-in-Furness.

Getting The News

Captain Ervine-Andrews, who received his V.C. from the King recently, heard of the award for the first time in a B.B.C. news bulletin. For some reason the communication to him from the War Office miscarried, and he was listening to the nine o'clock news after dining with some brother officers. When the name was read out one of them turned to him with the remark, "Some relation of yours, I suppose?"—London Spectator.

The Guernsey Breeders Journal states that reports are that some of Guernsey Island's cattle have been slaughtered and others taken to Germany for their dairy products.

The Enslaved Poles

Owing to death and emigration there are now 4,000,000 fewer Poles than when the Germans moved in. Hitler says that with the 18,000,000 remaining there are still 15,000,000 too many. Poles cannot marry without the consent of the German officials. Officially second class citizens, Poles must raise their hats to the Germans. Curfew rings at 8. Poles have to do six months work free for the Germans. Wedding rings and gold spectacle rims are confiscated. The country has been looted. All the factories, shops, hotels, and private estates have been appropriated. Early they shot a long list of business and professional men. Poles in the German part of Poland are forbidden to speak Polish. Schools are abolished for Poles. Priests must preach only in German. Was the peace of Versailles too severe?—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

Music Lessons In War Time

Musical Education Should Be Continued In Time Of Stress

Discussing the question of music lessons in war time, Sir Ernest MacMillan, principal of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, recently had this to say: "In this war to preserve civilization, when everything we have been taught to value is at stake, no sacrifice is too great to ensure a victory. The war is being fought so that our children will live in a better world. It would be a tragedy if we, in defending the civilization we treasure, failed to hand on the torch to those who follow after us. Every essential side of our children's education must be preserved at all costs.

"A child whose lessons are interrupted after he has begun to learn to play and sing will have more trouble in picking up lost threads in music than in most other subjects; music calls for a co-ordination of faculties more exacting than most subjects and every year lost means a serious setback. In some cases it may be that what began as a temporary economy may turn into a permanent loss.

"Music may seem a luxury to some, because by its very nature it calls for a certain amount of individual instruction; but no educational subject has proved more universally of value than music. The late President Eliot of Harvard University called music 'the best mind-trainer in the curriculum' and statistics bear out the claims of experienced educationalists that, broadly speaking, boys and girls who study music are likely to be better than others at their general studies."

Technical Agriculture To Aid In Maintaining A Sound Farming Industry

The role of technical agriculture during the war, said Dr. J. M. Swaine, director, Science Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, in a recent address at McMaster University in Hamilton, Ont., is clearly to assist in maintaining a sound agricultural industry in Canada, competent to supply the agricultural products required to a greater degree than ever before, able to furnish the United Kingdom and the allies of Canada with whatever they may need, and to maintain a stability that will make post-war adjustments possible without serious trade disturbances.

With an industry dependent so largely on overseas trade, and with those markets greatly reduced and future demands extremely uncertain, technical agriculture has before it a great field of work. Canada's largest market, the home market, should be more fully exploited; much attention has been given to selling apples and poultry in Great Britain, probably too little to selling them in Ontario and the Prairie Provinces. Soil fertility must be improved and maintained; the best cultural practices employed; the best seed produced and used; improved varieties developed and utilized; farm economics studied and applied; plant and animal pests and diseases controlled; new uses for agricultural products found and exploited; storage and processing facilities used much more extensively; and production and marketing policies and educational programs carried through as effectively as possible. Canadian produce should be of the finest quality, with the greatest economic production per acre in order to obtain the lowest possible cost to the producer and to the consumer.

In all this work, scientific-technical agriculture must give leadership and guidance, for on its help the agricultural community will be dependent as never before in the history of Canada. Careful planning by agricultural leaders and by individual farmers will be absolutely necessary in order for agriculture to play its part successfully in the years ahead.

A Land Of Peasants

Petain Cabinet Member Reveals Hitler's Aims For France

The London Times says: Of Hitler's ultimate designs for France little has yet been allowed to emerge. But there has been one revealing indiscretion by a member of the Petain cabinet. M. Pomaret, the Minister of Labor, has explained that the new France will abandon her "exaggerated industrialism" and become once more a land of peasant agriculture. This is the policy which Germany has tried for the past few years been trying, in virtue of her commercial stranglehold, to impose on the Balkans. It is the policy which she is even now trying to enforce in Denmark and Holland. According to the German reading of history, the power of Great Britain has been based on her position throughout the nineteenth century as the centre of the world's industrial production, using non-industrialized colonies and subject territories overseas as her market, as her granary, and as the source of her raw materials. The German dream is to emulate the British achievement, as Germany sees it.

A Wonderful Animal

Police Dog Showed His Cleverness In Exacting Test

Neal O'Hara, in the New York Post, says that wonder of the canine kingdom, Albert, the super-sniffing police dog, once went through this exacting test: Six persons, standing close together, each held a stone in his hand and then all threw them on the ground. Albert, who had been allowed to smell the hand of only one of the six, was then ordered to pick out the correct stone. After a brief sniffing, he made good.

Crabapple trees grew in aboriginal North America, but the huge apple crop today comes from Eurasian stock.

Cannot Be Broken

Courage And Endurance Of British People Will Never Fail

If the Nazi bombers hope to break the spirit and morale of the British people by their almost incessant bombings, they will find that they haven't sized the Briton up correctly. Campaigns of frightfulness, which might adversely affect certain peoples, can never dull the determination of the inhabitants of Britain to defeat anything that would deprive them of their liberties.

The Britishers naturally do not like air raids with the noise and inconvenience, with the interruption of routine and with the destruction and deaths. Lately, the night raids have interfered with the sleep of many thousands of people, which is so sorely needed in view of the severe strain which the bombings have put upon the nervous system. If there were the slightest possibility of the sturdy Britons willing, there would be some evidence by now. But, of course, there is none whatsoever. The people are not distraught, they are not desperate, they are not panicky. On the contrary, the brutality of the Nazi mind, as evidenced in the raining of death and destruction upon helpless human targets, has strengthened their determination to remain masters of their own souls rather than to surrender to one who would take a special delight in making them his slaves.

Serene in the righteousness of their cause and cheered by the growing strength of their country in the air, on the sea and on land, a strength which will ultimately change their defensive position into an offensive one, with victory certain, they will put up with what one correspondent calls the present Nazis "pinpricks." An insight into the fearless, imperturbable spirit of the British people was given in the story of how thousands of Londoners, robbed of their sleep by nocturnal Nazi bombers, danced and sang until dawn, ignoring intermittent sounds of gunfire and the drone of airplane motors overhead. Wonder how many people in Berlin or Rome would have done the same under similar circumstances. There is something about a Briton which Hitler and Mussolini will never understand and which they will never succeed in subduing or conquering. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Big Business Enterprise

Ministry Of Food For United Kingdom Employs 23,000 Persons

The United Kingdom Ministry of Food has become an enormous business enterprise. The Department has a turnover of £600,000,000 a year and a staff of 23,000 people divided into 17 main groups and divisions and 15,000 subdivisions. In a report to the Department of Trade and Commerce, Frederick Hudd, Chief Canadian Trade Commissioner in that country, states that the Ministry is the sole importer of 85 to 90 per cent. of the food supplies that come to the United Kingdom, including products of interest to Canada such as bacon, cheese, butter, eggs, milk, lard, and all meats. Imports have been cut by 12 per cent., but imports of calories were down only by 1 per cent., which indicated that the question of food values has been taken into account.

The primary object of the Ministry of Food is to ensure for the United Kingdom a sufficiency of food either from overseas or through home production. They are secondly concerned with ensuring that food supplies should be suitable to meet the physical and mental strains to which the public will be subjected. — St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Mobile Canteen Units

Personnel Well Trained To Look After Troops On March

Little known to the public but familiar to service men stationed at lonely posts in Britain are mobile units of the canteens subscribed for, staffed and maintained by members of the Electrical Association for Women.

In a pamphlet just published, work of the units is outlined by Mrs. William Paterson, who designed and presented the first canteen to the association. She also directs activities of the entire fleet.

Great attention is paid to the training of the personnel and to the welfare side of the work for the troops, who have nicknamed the helpers the "Blue Ladies," because they wear gay lobelia blue uniforms with silver buttons.

"The needs of the men, however difficult, are always met," Mrs. Paterson reports. "Once the helpers were asked for dressed crab. Another time the men wanted a cricket bat and a London man who had never been much in the country asked for a book on birds."

"A travelling library, arranged with folding portable book cases, is carried on each canteen so that during the stops, the men can choose what books they want at their leisure."

"Sometimes as many as 100 or 200 men are met on the march and a halt is made to give them refreshments. Each canteen has a modern kitchen planned to allow two or three workers in it at a time. Fresh flowers and a cheerful clock give a homelike atmosphere which the men always appreciate."

"Socks are collected and mended, and buttons sewn on, and letters posted for the men who are most grateful for the services given them."

An electrically-propelled canteen, subscribed for in sixpences by many of the Association's 9,000 members, will soon join the service.

Something To Laugh At

Hope Expressed That Britain Will Not Tax Ladies' Hats

The British Government has another problem on its hands. It must decide the vital question whether, under its new budget, ladies' hats are luxurious or necessities. And we had always imagined, looking at them, that they were just innocent jokes.

To find that they have become economic factors, figures in the budget, part of the Government's war calculations, seems to take the fun out of them somehow. You could laugh at an inverted pie plate, a hot-cross bun, a decorated pancake or a green surrealist bird on the top of a pretty lady's curls. But no patriot can even smile at an important feature of the nation's taxation structure.

The British Chancellor of the Exchequer would be wise to go easy on girls' headgear. We need all the laughs we can get these days. Vancouver Sun.

British Commonwealth Has Huge Resources And Unequalled Staying Power

Self-Centred People

Unbelievable Disregard For The Rights Of Others

Selfishness, in the long run, is about the heaviest self-imposed handicap any man can carry. There are persons who like to run life on a 60-20 basis, the odds always in favor of the self-centred. Others less, greedily merely demand a quid pro quo and never give anything away. Some demand payment where nothing is due. Still more expect exemption from any unpleasantness, and gladly let their troubles fall on the blameless. It may be that this war and the lessons the world is learning from it may do something to diminish membership in the "All for Self" Club.

A crisis of any kind, but more particularly one threatening physical danger, seems to bring out every quality in any character. Provided selfishness is one of them it rises to the top like sediment turned to scum in a boiling cauldron. An emergency shows up, as can nothing else, the great and entirely mistaken valuation those possessing no consideration for others, can place upon themselves. Under trial the selfish become more selfish, and the generous more self-sacrificing.

Most adults have met cases in which gross selfishness has led to almost unbelievable disregard of the rights of others. Sometimes it almost seems as if lack of vision was an accompaniment of this form of mental disease, if so it may be called. Mr. Somerset Maugham has put on record the tale of a fellow passenger, one among the 500 that after a perilous trip in a collier reached safety from France. When danger seemed over a collection was taken up for the crew. A little later one of the contributors asked for a double portion of the slim rations allotted, basing her claim on the ground that when the hat had been passed round she had put in 100 francs, a sum which if presented in the proper quarter might at the present rate of exchange be worth a few stamps. The point seems to be that the selfish always feel justified. One prick of conscience would send them off on an expedition to help others, at least in a small way. But that only happens rarely. To them the world is their oyster. That's the way Napoleon felt. That is undoubtedly how the Berlin gangsters feel. Fortunately there is always a come back. In the long run "Doing Others" is apt to turn into a boomerang, destroying the source from which it came.—Ottawa Journal.

Nearly 30,000 New York children, 6,000 more than last year, have been attending Daily Vacation Bible Schools this summer.

The church of St. Richard de Wych, Coleman's Hatch, Sussex, is to be sold by auction.

A map of the world, or better still a globe, is the best tonic for despondent minds in our present times.

Great Britain herself dominates the western approach to the vast store house of North America. The West Indies guard the approaches to South America and to the Panama Canal. Canada flanks the North Atlantic and all the Northern Pacific. Gibraltar watches the Western Entrance to the Mediterranean; the Eastern half is dominated by Egypt, Palestine and Cyprus. The Suez Canal at one end of the Red Sea, Aden and British Somaliland at the other make those waters a British lake despite the uneasy intrusion of Italy. The wide expanses of the Indian Ocean are equally a British reserve. South and East Africa, India and Ceylon, Malaya, North Borneo and New Guinea, and Australia and New Zealand, constitute a gigantic arch within and around which cluster 500,000,000 human beings.

Throughout this world wide system every part is buttressed by the rest. The map shows that the British Commonwealth has unequalled staying power, not only because of its huge resources, but because it rings the earth. It does not sprawl across the ocean and continents, but knits them together and is a network most difficult to cut. It is elastic and tough.

Continental theorists often explain the ease with which the Empire could be dismembered. Their confidence is due rather to their greed than to an understanding of the facts. But whoever has a dominant navy can "occupy his business in the great waters" as he chooses. The roads across the oceans are safe so long as the Royal Navy keeps control of the sea.—Port of London Monthly.

A Free Colony

French Equatorial Africa Will Be Valuable To Britain Now

Although fewer than 5,000 Europeans live in the vast forest and desert region known as French Equatorial Africa the "rebellion" of this distant colony against the Vichy Government may be of great value to the British in their struggle against the Axis Powers. Lake Chad, the strategic centre of the colony, is one of the most important junction points in all Africa. Last year the British heard of German plans to seize Lake Chad by a lightning attack of air forces, with transport planes, operating from Italian Libya. One of the last pre-war achievements of Georges Mandel as French Minister of Colonies was to checkmate such an attempt by completing a military road to Lake Chad from Ouargla, in Northern Algeria. But with France a prisoner of the Axis, the road to Lake Chad might become more of a menace than a protection. If German and Italian troops and supply trains could use this road, they could reach the borders of Nigeria, the richest of all of Britain's African possessions.

There is every prospect now, however, that the French authorities in Equatorial Africa will continue the fight alongside the British. The Axis is thus not only deprived of a strategic springboard in the heart of Africa, but deprived too of an easy route to Equatorial Africa's resources of wild rubber, cotton and minerals. Most valuable of all to the British, the action of a few courageous French commanders has kept the free Tricolor waving in at least one corner of the world. The sight of that flag, unstained by any obedience to German orders, may well rally other French colonial authorities to continue the war.—New York Times.

The World of Wheat

By H. G. L. STRANGE

Director, "The Crop Testing Plan."

September 28th is the anniversary of the landing of the Normans on the shores of Britain in 1066. The Normans assembled 3,000 vessels and 60,000 men on the French coast during August, and in September, as a ruse, pretended to disperse their fleet and army.

The Normans then arranged for a force of Norwegians to invade the northern part of Britain. The Saxon King Harold took his army from the south coast to repel the Norwegians and while he was doing this the Normans landed at Pevensey in Sussex. The Norman army, however, had to rest on the coast 16 days before they were ready to fight and then on October 14th, 1066, was fought the Battle of Hastings. The Britons lost because they were unable to reassemble their ships and soldiers which had gone north to fight the Norwegians.

The Battle of Hastings sowed the seeds which finally blossomed into the British Empire, one of the branches of which is Canada, which became the wheat granary of Britain; and now Hitler is trying to destroy, on the south English coast the great British Empire started on that very spot by the Normans in 1066.

Hitler likes anniversaries, so we must watch out during the month of October.

Following factors have tended to raise price: No export licenses will be granted for wheat, corn or barley from Turkey -- No surplus of wheat in Jugoslavia this year -- Estimated Australian wheat crop approximately 115 million bushels less than last year -- Russia arranging to import American soft white wheat.

Following factors have tended to lower price: Peruvian government prohibits rye importation and orders flour of quinoa to be mixed with wheat flour -- Good corn crop anticipated in Rumania -- Acreage to winter grains in the United Kingdom is expected to show an increase over last year.

Alberta Pacific Negotiating for Bawlf Elevators

Shareholders of the N. Bawlf Grain Company Ltd. will meet on October 25th to consider a second offer by the Alberta Pacific Grain Company Ltd. to buy the Bawlf company for $1,000,000.

According to the offer, the Alberta Pacific Grain would assume all liabilities of the company, except liabilities to shareholders for all assets of N. Bawlf Grain.

Buy Canadian Milk

The British ministry of food has arranged with the department of agriculture for purchase of 150,000 cases of evaporated milk to be delivered before end of next March, minister of agriculture Gardiner announced Friday. Value of the shipment is understood to exceed $550,000 and is in addition to the 800,000 cases contracted for in July.

Information for Recruits Called for Military Training

The men reporting for training at Militia Training Centres will be issued with complete battle dress, the same as issued to units of the C.A.S.F. In addition they will be issued with great coats, socks, gloves, overshoes, underwear, boots and shirts.

When the man has completed his period of training, he will be allowed to retain his underwear, socks and boots but will be required to produce his boots if he should be called back for a further period of training at a later date.

Small articles of kit will not be issued by the training centres. It will therefore be necessary for the recruit to bring with him such articles as braces, boot brush, hair brush, towels, tooth brush, shaving kit, comb, soap, and any other articles of this nature that he may require.

Blankets will be the only bedding issued at the training centres.

Sports will also engaged in extensively during the training period and it is suggested that running shoes and, depending on the season, any sports equipment that the man may have may be brought, such as skates.

Men who can play musical instruments should bring them along so that he may take part in concerts.

American Does His Bit

One afternoon recently a man was seen approaching the Canadian end of the Whirlpool Rapids Bridge at Niagara from the United States side carrying a burlap sack which appeared to be well filled. When he reached the Canadian customs office he placed the sack on the floor and said that he wanted to make a contribution to Britain's war work and asked the customs officers to forward the sack to England. Upon examination the sack was found to contain old copper wire, scrap brass and other metals. These, he declared, should be made into munitions. The sack is being held awaiting final disposal.

BUSINESS

A LITTLE steam lifts the lid of your tea-kettle. A lot of steam drives trains, machinery. Your bank deposit may be little, but it combines with millions of others to make a lot of "steam". It helps to run the nation's machinery of production, marketing, employment, business. It is important indeed to the country's war financing and war-time effort. The money is yours yet it helps provide the credit necessary to move the goods and services of the nation. Canada's chartered banks thus perform functions of great usefulness. They receive the deposits of millions of Canadians, and extend credit to individuals, governments, businessmen and marketing organizations. The small depositor is important to the banks. The "little fellow", popularly so-called, is welcomed by any bank, as a customer.

In war, as in peace, Canada's Chartered Banks maintain, uninterrupted, their useful services—safeguarding depositors' funds; facilitating the nation's business—looking forward to peace with freedom as the only sure basis of enduring prosperity.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Promotion of Group Captain C. E. Brookes, commanding Toronto air training centre, to the rank of air commodore, was announced.

Plans to prepare 30,000 to 40,000 United States chemists for war were announced by the American Chemical Society.

Announcing the largest contract letting in its history, the United States navy placed orders for 201 ships to cost a total of $3,861,053,312.

The headquarters of the De Gaulle government for free France announced that the British blockade has been lifted from all French colonies which have declared for a free French empire.

Malcolm MacDonald, minister for health, appealed to London householders to take in families made homeless by German bombs and to lend furniture and bedding to other victims.

Great concern has been aroused in Japan by a movement in the United States to place a complete embargo on shipments to Japan of oil, scrap metal and other vital raw materials, Domei news agency said.

Air training will be carried on during the winter across Canada almost as effectively as in the summer, James S. Duncan, deputy minister for air, said. The days will be shorter, but air conditions tend to be more uniform in the winter, he said.

NEAT, BUTTON-FRONT SHIRT-WAIST

By Anne Adams

You'll wear this neat-as-a-pin frock from dawn to dark for round the house days. Anne Adams has planned every feature of Pattern 4489 for becoming effect and for speedy stitching via the Sewing Instructor. The button-front makes a smart, slenderizing line... lets you in and out quickly... and helps adjust the frock to your size. Panels to the front and back of the skirt seem to diminish your width and add to your height. Both the wide cuffs on the short sleeves style and the attractively shaped collar may be edged with ric-rac or made in fresh contrast. Novel triangular pockets (not pictured) are optional.

Pattern 4489 is available in misses' and women's sizes 16, 18, 20, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 takes 4½ yards 35 inch fabric and 2½ yards ric-rac.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly Size, Name, Address and Style Number and send orders to the Anne Adams Pattern Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave. E., Winnipeg.

Invisible Paint

No Such Substance Known Or Used On Aeroplanes

To the "secret" weapons which are supposed to win the war for either the British or the Germans and which are not likely to materialize we must now add "invisible" paint or varnish. The British properly brand the tale as "nonsense." Probably German scientists will agree, though the reports of invisible paint came out of Germany.

In "Barry Lyndon" Thackeray remarks that "the secret was so thoroughly hushed up that the next day the whole army of a hundred thousand men knew it." So with this fabulous paint or varnish. Everybody knows that a mirror reflects more line than the wall on which it is hung. Roughen any surface and its visibility at a distance is measurably lowered. Blacken it in addition and visibility is still further reduced if the background is not bright. An "invisible" varnish is an absurdity if we mean the usual highly reflecting surface. Even if an airplane were made of rough, transparent, unbreakable plastic, which might be possible, considering the uses to which synthetic resins are now put, it would still be silhouetted against the sky or a cloud if only because of its interfering parts in different planes. Besides, it would be full of opaque and therefore conspicuous metal, not to mention a pilot who would be anything but Well's invisible man.

What we have here is clearly a development of camouflage, which came into its own during the last war. Even then experiments were made with painted patterns of various hues and designs for the protection of airplanes. Coating the under surface of wings and fuselages with a flat black would help in the glare of a searchlight, but not much. So with painting the tops of surfaces with a color like that of the ground as a protection against daylight bombing. No doubt the British are resorting to these tricks. But they are tricks that all military staffs have known for years.—New York Times.

Nothing New For Britain

Empire Has Taken Her Stand Alone During Past Centuries

The other day, Fougasse, the famous British cartoonist, had a picture in Punch. It depicted two soldiers nonchalantly resting on top of a cliff fronting the Channel. "So our poor old Empire is alone in the world," said one. "Aye," returned his companion, "we are—the whole five hundred million of us."

That little item of recollection should serve to hearten any who are disposed to be gloomy. The Empire stands alone. What of it? Has it not been something of a habit of the Empire over the centuries? It is still far more powerful than all its enemies put together and grows more powerful with every passing hour. That the high winds of war are only serving to root the British oak more deeply than ever is amply apparent and there is a growing disposition throughout the Empire that when peace comes again it shall be the "Pax Britannica" and not merely a slipshod, unorganized, dangerous truce.

Pray God our greatness may not fall

Through craven fears of being great. —Brantford Expositor.

I Read --- And Write --- For You

By JOHN C. KIRKWOOD

A watery grave can't always hide what's buried in it. Take the case, by way of example, of the Monitor, first ironclad battleship in the world, and which was sunk 77 years ago, with all its crew, having foundered in a heavy storm. For a long time the bulk of the Monitor had been forgotten, but two years ago the president of the National Geographic Society became inquisitive, and set afoot plans for photographing the sunken Monitor and other ships which had gone to the bottom near it. So photographic pictures were taken from a variety of altitudes ranging from 50 feet to 27,000 feet above the sea. Special cameras were used, but the conditions were not ideal—a heavy haze hung over the spot, and light did not penetrate to any great depth of water. It is planned to take more photographs. So someday you are likely to see the Monitor and other ships as buried in the sea. In the pages of the National Geographic Magazine.

Perhaps in some very naughty moods of yours, you have tried to imagine how you could kidnap some person for the ransom you would exact, and how to get the ransom without your getting caught. And even if you have never had such evil thoughts, you have probably read, with judicial attention, about the schemes devised by kidnapers to get the ransom money without their being crushed in the net cast by the police. So what do you think of the ways proposed by three men who sought $100,000 from a manager of Sears, Roebuck stores in the Milwaukee area? But in this case, it was not a kidnapping crime, but an extortion plot. The plotters had no grievances in respect of this store manager; they just wanted money, and picked on a man deemed able to cough up $100,000.

The first effort was a threat to plant a time bomb in a Sears, Roebuck store—this unless Mr. Davis, the store manager, paid up before a specified date. He was directed to wrap $100,000 in small bills in a parcel, this parcel to be dropped from an aeroplane to be flown over Lake Michigan, to a submarine which would be waiting and which would be visible. This submarine was a home-made contraption. But experiments made by the criminals with the submarine revealed the disconcerting fact that it would not submerge!

Then the conspirators proposed a new way of getting the money. They ordered Davis to hire a motorcycle and to carry the money to a specified deserted location. But it was a policeman who rode the motorcycle, and who deposited a dummy package at the spot specified. This spot was watched by a number of concealed policemen, but nobody collected the package; the man who should have picked up the package said, afterwards, that he had got "cold feet."

From the beginning the police had suspected a certain man because he had done some metal repair work at one of the stores; they matched pieces of the bomb—which had been exploded as per threat—with scraps found in the abandoned shop of this metal-worker. With this clue they tracked down all three men.

It is the submarine "technique" that is interesting.

Over a thousand golfers met in mid-August at the Forest Hill Field Club, Bloomfield, N.J., to compete in a hole-in-one tournament. This annual tournament was initiated in 1932. All entrants must have made a hole in one on a legitimate golf course. Prior to this year's contest a total of 4,350 players have participated in this hole-in-one event. Jointly they fired 21,800 shots, and in all this time only three golfers hit the bull's eye. The most spectacular of these perfect shots was made by Jack Hagen—no relation to the great Walter, veteran professional. In 1933 he was the first player to tee off, and he dropped his ace on the third of the five shots allotted each contestant.

Talking about golf: when you arrive at the seventh or ninth hole, eat candy and improve your score. This is not just fancy or humor. It has the authority of Dr. Paul Michael, writing in the Journal of the American Medical Association. He has made intensive and extensive studies of the effects of sugar on golfers at the middle of the course. From the 11th to the 15th hole the blood sugar is well below the gasting level. Sugar in the blood provides immediately available energy and therefore corrects fatigue.

Now we may look for new "appeals" in the advertisements of makers of candy and chocolate bars.

Troops Are Popular

People In Iceland Like Canadian And British Soldiers

There is every reason to believe that Icelanders wish British and Canadian troops guarding this country to remain for the duration of the war. Recent events have shocked many Icelanders into realizing that a German victory would mean the death of freedom.

Repeatedly Icelanders say they vastly prefer British occupation to German occupation and actually the quartering of British defence forces in Iceland has brought large sums of money to the country and provided a great deal of employment.

The British pay cash for everything and interfere as little as possible with the normal life of the nation.

The planes flew over Reykjavik and, some people said, the demonstration was perhaps a little too exciting. The fliers flew in formation and singly. They dived and swooped low over buildings and performed all manner of aerial acrobatics.

It was a demonstration of British airmanship calculated to go a long way toward counteracting effects of German broadcast propaganda.

At headquarters of the Canadian troops a Canadian Icelander who was born in Selkirk, Man., is the official interpreter and has plenty to keep him busy.

The Canadians generally like Icelanders, especially the children. The youngsters quickly learned to say "hello" to the men in khaki and in a country where an army heretofore was unknown the troops are a great curiosity.

SELECTED RECIPES

HONEY RICE KRISPS

½ cup sugar
½ cup honey
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 package Kellogg's Rice Krispies

Cook sugar and honey, stirring only enough to prevent burning, to a temperature of 270 degrees F. (hard ball in cold water). Remove from heat; add salt and vinegar. Put Rice Krispies in large buttered bowl or kettle, and pour in syrup, mixing well. While hot, drop by the spoonful into buttered cups or muffin pans, or form into balls. The mixture may be pressed into shallow greased pans and cut into bars.

Yield: 20 small balls (about two inches in diameter).

PUMPKIN PIE

2 cups cooked pumpkin
½ cup Bee Hive Golden or White Corn Syrup
1 cup white sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon St. Lawrence or Durham Corn Starch
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups milk

Beat eggs light and add to pumpkin already mixed with syrup, sugar and spices. Blend corn starch with milk and add. Mix all thoroughly and pour into deep pie plate lined with good pastry. Bake in hot oven 450 degrees F. first 10 minutes, then reduce heat until filling set, in all about 30-35 minutes. Serve with whipped cream.

A Bit Tangled

The churchwarden was to be married to a nurse from a local hospital and it was decided by members of the congregation to give him some token of esteem. A committee decided on a sum of money in a net purse worked by the curate's wife.

The decision was announced at a church meeting by the curate, a nervous little man.

"My dear friends," he said, "it has—er—been decided—er—to present to our esteemed friend, Mr. L., on the—er—occasion of—er—his marriage, 25 pounds—and a pet nurse."

Dogs Obey Rald Sirens

Animals are becoming siren-conscious. Simon, whose kennel is in a Kent naval town, is said to give a warning howl before sirens are heard in the district and heads for the Anderson shelter. Toby, a terrier owned by a southwest London family, is reported to make a dash for the garden shelter immediately the sirens start their eerie wail.

United States Department of Agriculture planes have captured thousands of crop pests three miles off the ground. The habits of the high-flying insects are charted to check their spread.

TOPICS of VITAL INTEREST

ALUMINUM FOR AIRCRAFT

The Minister for aircraft production, the Canadian Lord Beaverbrook, issued the following appeal for aluminum to the women of Britain:

"Give us your aluminum. We want it and we want it now. New and old, of every type and description, and all of it.

"We will turn your pots and pans into Spitfires and Hurricanes, Blenheims and Wellingtons. I ask, therefore, that everyone who has pots and pans, kettles, vacuum cleaners, hat pegs, coat-hangers, shoe-trees, bathroom fittings, cigarette boxes or any articles made wholly or in part of aluminum should hand them over at once to the local headquarters of the Women's Voluntary Services." The appeal, according to the London Times, has met with a wide response.

This is not a health article, but nevertheless it is an important topic which in this country as well as Britain demands attention. Canadians if given a similar appeal would respond just as heartily as they are doing across the seas.

Is it not time that the Government of this country should make a similar appeal to Canada? The country is swarming with old and new aluminum pots, pans and other articles which most of us could, for a time, do without.

Aluminum makes excellent culinary utensils and other articles of household and domestic use. Contrary to ignorant opinion aluminum vessels carry no hazard to the user of foods cooked in them. They are safe for us, but as I have already said, we can do without them in a pinch. The need for aluminum must be tremendous in Great Britain. To supply what we can of this material will help to win the war.

Determined To Serve

British Officer Who Won The V.C. Joins Up As Able Seaman

Lieutenant - Commander Geoffrey Drummond, V.C., one of England's heroes of the First Great War, has joined up again as an able seaman in the Thames river patrol service.

Lieut.-Commander Drummond was awarded the Victoria Cross in 1918 for rescuing all the survivors of H.M.S. Vendictive when she was sunk as a block ship in Ostend harbor. Although wounded in three places he took his motor launch into the harbor under terrific fire from shore batteries. During part of the action he carried a kitten on his shoulder and for that reason became known as the "Whittington V.C."

At the outbreak of the present war he tried to join up again as an officer but as he is 54 was turned down. Determined to serve in some capacity, he signed on as an A.B. (abled-bodied seaman) in the river patrol service and works as an ordinary deckhand, scrubbing decks and washing dishes.

Guard Shetland Islands

Proof that Britain is taking no chances in case the Germans attempt an invasion, is the fact that even the Shetland Islands, like the mainland, have now been put into a state of defence, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported. This work has been done by the islanders themselves who work from dawn to dark.

"THIS HAS THE VITAL FOOD VALUES THAT MY FAMILY NEEDS"

Over two Nabisco Shredded Wheat slice a banana, pour a cupful or more of milk, sugar to taste—and you have a breakfast made to order for a lazy morning-appetite! But that's only half the story. In this one delicious dish, you actually get eight vital food values: Three Vitamins (A, B, and C), Iron, Calcium, Phosphorus, Carbohydrates and Proteins.

Leading Canadian health authorities agree that "whole grain cereals" are an essential "protective" food in peace and war. Nabisco Shredded Wheat, is a "whole grain cereal"—100% pure whole wheat—with all the rich, inner flavor of Nature's finest cereal grain. Serve this nourishing, low cost, morning meal to your family regularly.

CHAPTER XVII

The news that Mr. Stratford Harlow was entertaining the Macedonian delegates at his house in Park Lane was not of such vital importance that it deserved any great attention from the London press. A three-line paragraph at the foot of a column confirmed the date and the hour. For Jim this proved to be unnecessary, since a reminder came by the second post on the following day, requesting the pleasure of his company at the reception.

"They might have asked you to the dinner," said Elk. "Especially as it's free. I'll bet that bird keeps a good brand of cigar."

"Write and ask for a box; you'll get it," said Jim, and Elk sniffed.

"That'd be against the best interests of the service," he said virtuously. "Do you think I'd get 'em if I mentioned your name?"

"You'd get the whole Havana crop," said Jim. "I've got a pick. Anyway, there'll be plenty of cigars for you on the night of the reception."

"Me?" Elk brightened visibly. "He didn't send me an invite."

"Nevertheless you are going," said Jim definitely. "I'm anxious to know just what this reception is all about. I suppose it's a wonderful thing to stop these Macedonian brigands from shooting at one another, but I can't see the excuse for a swagger London party."

"Maybe he's got a girl he wants to show off," suggested Elk helpfully.

"You've a despicable mind," was Jim's only comment.

He was not the only hard-worked man in London that week. Every night he walked with Elk and stood opposite the new Rata building in Moorgate street. Each room was brilliantly illuminated; cable messengers came and went; and he learned from one of the extra staff whom he had put into the building that even Ellenbury, who usually did not allow himself to be identified publicly with the business, was working till 3 o'clock every morning.

Scotland Yard has many agencies throughout the world, and from these the full extent of Rata's activities began dimly to be seen.

"They've sold nothing, but they're going to sell," reported Jim to his chief at the Yard; "and it's going to be the biggest bear movement that we have seen in our generation."

His chief was a natural enemy to the superlatives of youth.

"If it were an offense to 'bear' the market I should have no neighbors," he said icily. "Almost every stockbroker I know has taken a flutter at some time or other. My information is that the market is firm and healthy. If Harlow is really behind this coup, then he looks like losing money. Why don't you see him and ask him plainly what is the big idea?"

Jim made a little face.

"I shall see him to-night at the party," he said, "but I doubt very much whether I shall have a chance of worming my way into his confidence."

Elk was not a society man. It was his dismal claim that not in any rank of the metropolitan police force was there a man with less education than himself. Year after year, with painful regularity, he had failed to pass the examination which was necessary for promotion to the rank of inspector. History flooded him; dates of royal accessions and expedient assassinations drove him to despair. Sheer merit eventually secured him the rank which his lack of book learning denied him.

"How'll I do?"

He had come up to Jim's room

arrayed for the reception, and now he turned solemnly on his feet to reveal the unusual splendor of evening dress. The tail coat was creased, the trousers had been treated by an amateur cleaner, for they reeked of petrol, and the shirt was soft and yellow with age.

"It's the white weskit that worries me," he complained. "My young woman servant says you only wear white weskits for wedding's. But I'm sure the party's going to be a fancy one. You wearin' a white weskit?"

"I shall probably wear one," said Jim soothingly. "And you look a peach, Elk!"

"They'll take me for a waiter, but I'm used to that," said Elk. "Last time I went to a party they made me serve the drinks. Quite a lot never got by!"

"I want you to fix a place where I can find you," said Jim, struggling with his tail coat. "That may be very necessary."

"The bar," said Elk laconically. "If it's called a bar-fit then I'll be at the bar-fit!"

There was a little crowd gathered before the door of Harlow's house. They made a lane clear of the striped awning beneath which the guests passed into the flower-decked vestibule. For the first time Jim saw the millionaire's domestic staff in the glory of fine raiment, with their powdered hair, their silken calves and glittering aiguillettes. A gorgeous creature took his card and did not question the presence of Elk, who strolled nonchalantly past the guard-ian.

"White weskits?" he hissed. "I knew it would be fancy!"

The wide doors of the library were thrown open and here Mr. Harlow was receiving his guests. Dinner was over and the privileged guests were standing in a half circle about him—a dark-faced Bulgarian with a sweeping black mustache the most conspicuous of the group.

"White weskit," murmured Elk, "and the bar's in the corner of the room."

Harlow had already seen them, and though Mr. Elk was an uninvited guest, he greeted him with warmth. To his companion he gave a warm and hearty hand.

"Have you seen Sir Joseph?" he asked.

Jim had seen the Foreign Secretary that afternoon to learn whether he had made any fresh plans, but had found that Sir Joseph was adhering to his original intention of attending the reception only. He was telling Harlow this, when there was a stir at the door, and, looking around, he saw the Foreign Secretary enter the room and stop to shake hands with a friend at the door. He wore his black velvet jacket, his long black tie straggled artistically over his white shirt front. Sir Joseph had been pilloried as the worst-dressed man in London, and yet, for all his slovenliness of attire, he had the distinctive air of a grand gentleman.

He fixed his horn-rimmed pince-nez and favored Jim with a friendly smile as he made his way to his host.

"I was afraid I could not come," he said in his husky voice. "The truth is, some foolish newspaper has been giving prominence to a ridiculous story that went the rounds a few weeks ago, and I have to be in my place to answer a question."

"Rather late for question time, Sir Joseph, smiled Harlow. "I always thought they were taken before the real business of Parliament began."

Sir Joseph nodded in his jerky way.

"Yes, yes," he said, a little testily, "but when questions of policy arise, and a member gives me private notice of his intention of asking such a question, it can be put at any period."

He swept Parliament and vexatious questioners out of existence with a gesture of his hand.

Jim watched the two men talking together. They were in a deep and earnest conversation, and he gathered from Sir Joseph's gesticulations that the Minister was feeling very strongly on the subject under discussion. Presently they strolled through the crowded library into the vestibule, and after a decent interval Jim went on their trail. He signalled his companion from the buffet, and Mr. Elk, wiping his mustache hurriedly, joined him as he reached the door.

The guests were still arriving; the vestibule was crowded, and progress was slow. Presently a side door in the hall opened, and over the heads of the crush he saw Sir Joseph and Mr. Harlow come out and make for the street. Harlow turned back and met the detectives.

"A short visit," he said, "but worth while!"

Jim reached the steps in time to see the Foreign Minister's car moving into Park Lane and he had a glimpse of Sir Joseph as he waved his hand in farewell. ***

He stayed long enough to justify a paragraph in the morning newspaper—and the uncharitable will believe that that was all I wanted! You're not going?"

It was Harlow speaking.

"I'm sorry, I also have an engagement—in the House!" said Jim good-humoredly, and Mr. Harlow laughed.

"I see. You were here on duty as well, eh? Well, that's a very wise precaution. I now realize that not only are you a lucky but you are a shortsighted young man!"

"Why?" asked Jim, so sharply that Harlow laughed.

"I will tell you one of these days," he said.

The Master Tyrant

Hitler Rose From The Ranks Of The Proletariat

No matter how much emphasis may be laid upon the sins and shortcomings of ancient aristocracies and hereditary rulers, who have been held up to obloquy by historians, the historian of the future will find no tyranny or oppression more horrible and no bloodshed and murder more vindictive than what has taken place under the direction of a little man who rose from the ranks of the proletariat and the unemployed.

The world might well look longingly back to the emperors and kings and wish for the return of dynasties like the Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs, with all their faults and failings. Fort William Times-Journal.

HOME SERVICE

FIX UP CHAIRS FOR FALL WITH TRIM SLIP COVERS

Simple to Fit any Chair or Sofa

What a blessing slip covers are for worn, shabby chairs! Like new upholstery. And you can so easily and inexpensively make attractive year-round styles, fix up your own chairs for fall.

Smart now are covers of colorful cotton crash like the one we've shown—a rich beige with a green and rust all-over motif. Seams are bound in beige and the flounce is smartly pleated.

The secret of making a well-fitting cover is that you smooth the fabric over the old upholstery, pin where seams will be and cut, leaving 1½-inch seam allowance. Work a section at a time—first inside back and seat, then arms, sides, back. The flounce you add last to finished cover. To fit a barrel chair like the one pictured, smooth fabric down inside back, cut at bottom and piece as the diagram shows, or, if fabric is wide, make two long darts in place of seams. Then sew up seams and attach a 4-inch bias band along the bottom to tuck in.

In our 32-page booklet you find directions for making slip covers for all type of chairs and sofas, including barrel and channel-back styles. Explains every step: estimating material, cutting, fitting, finishing. Suggests fabrics, colors, trimmings.

Send 15 cents in coins for your copy of "How to Make Slip Covers" to Home Service Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermot Ave. E., Winnipeg, Man.
